Thanks

Thanks to our Young Adult leaders and all parents who helped with and participated in the Trunk or Treat last Saturday! Special thanks to Joe Delfin for being our DJ, and Ishan Jain & his crew for decorating our school bus. Many of our children and families came out and joined us for the 5pm mass and the Halloween party afterwards.

Thanks to members of our English, Cantonese, and Mandarin choirs for representing the Chinese Apostolate at St. Mary of the Angels Parish last Sunday. Special thanks to Lily May for coordinating this experience. The parishioners at St. Mary of the Angels learned much about Chinese Catholics in our parish and in the Archdiocese of Chicago. I had the blessing of saying mass for their school children on Tuesday, Oct. 24th and experienced first hand the excitement of sharing our faith and celebrating it with people of all cultures.

Thanks to the Januszewski Family for generously donating $500.00 towards the upgrading of our sound system at St. Barbara Church. The total cost for this project is about $12,000.00. Due to supply challenges, our chosen contractor hopes to complete this project before Christmas. Meanwhile our wireless Mics don't work well and we have to depend on the wired microphones.

Caring for Our Common Home

As the G-20 leaders met in Scotland recently to renew their commitment to solve the problem of the climate change, all of us are reminded to do our part to care for our mother earth. As we remember all faithful departed and reflect on our own mortality this month, we too are challenged to renew our responsibility toward God's creation.

One of the champions for ecological well-being is our Holy Father Pope Francis. In his encyclical letter, Laudato Si', Pope Francis reminds us that our earth is crying out to us for protection because of the harm we have irresponsibly inflicted upon her. He appears to all to care for ecology and to have a productive dialogue about the future shape of our planet.

The urgent challenge to protect our common home includes a concern to bring the whole human family together to seek a sustainable and integral development, for we know that things can change. The Creator does not abandon us; he never forsakes his loving plan or repents of having created us. Humanity still has the ability to work together in building our common home. Here I want to recognize, encourage and thank all those striving in countless ways to guarantee the protection of the home which we share. Particular appreciation is owed to those who tirelessly seek to resolve the tragic effects of environmental degradation on the lives of the world's poorest. Young people demand change. They wonder how anyone can claim to be building a better future without thinking of the environmental crisis and the sufferings of the excluded.

Peace, Fr. Francis

WIDOWS AND SCRIBES by Fr. John Cuff

Bishop Desmond Tutu of South Africa likes to tell this joke: When the missionaries came to Africa, we had the land and they had the Bible. Then they said, "Let us pray ...," and asked us to close our eyes. By the time the prayer was over, they now had the land and we had the Bible. And he ends the joke by adding, "And I think we got the better deal." It brings to mind Karl Marx's criticism of the Christianity of his day as the "opiate of the people," putting people to sleep while the ground is stolen from under their feet.

In the first half of today's Gospel, Jesus warns his followers against religious leaders who propagate this kind of anesthetic religiosity. "Beware of the scribes, who devour widows' houses and for the sake of appearance say long prayers. They will receive the greater condemnation." Then in the section about the poor widow, we see the tragic result of this kind of religiosity. Traditionally the Widow's Mite story is seen as a model of heroic self-giving and generosity to organized religion. But if we read it in the context in which Mark wrote it, as tragic evidence of the religious exploitation for which Jesus condemned the Temple religious establishment, we must read it as a condemnation of the use of religion to exploit simple, suffering and powerless humanity. Jesus in the Temple has just condemned the unscrupulous scribes who devour widows' property under the pretext of religious fervor. Then he calls attention to the poor widow putting "everything she had, her whole living" into the treasury, as if to say, "See what I mean?"

The scribes never literally robbed widows' houses. Rather they exploited widows by persuading them to give up even the little they had. It's like what happened at the World's Fair in San Francisco in 1939. One of the attractions was a pile of money said to total $1,000,000. For 25 cents, visitors were allowed to touch the money. Poor people spent their last quarter to have a momentary brush with affluence. Did it make them any richer? No, only 25 cents poorer. False ideas nourishing false hopes can rob the poor even of the little they have.

The poor widow in the Gospel symbolizes all who have no voice, no means, and no power. Do we Catholics reach out to such people to help them improve their lot? Or do we only tell them to pray harder and everything will be all right, knowing quite well that it takes more than prayer to revive their fortunes? Is Christianity a powerless Gospel that opiates the people and maintains the status quo, or is it the Good News that liberates and transforms personal and social life? We know the answer in theory; but how about in practice? In today's Gospel Jesus commends the widow, but condemns the scribes who have reduced her to the state of indigence. He praises her for her total trust in God, even though the religious establishment took advantage of it. But fortunately, in the Kingdom of God and as Desmond Tutu rightly remarks, it's the victimized who get the better deal.
